Awards were made through 19 different programs listed in the report. In addition to grants to organizations, Endowment funds also go to individuals through fellowships and to public arts agencies and arts service organizations, sometimes in the form of cooperative agreements.

Grant money authorized by Congress comes to the Endowment as Program Funds, Treasury Funds and Challenge Grant Funds. Most direct grants to organizations and individuals come from Program Funds. Most grants to organizations must be matched at least dollar-for-dollar with funds from other sources. Grants to individuals do not require matching funds.

Treasury Fund grants, awards designed to help applicants increase or sustain non-Federal contributions, generally must be matched with at least three non-Federal dollars for each Federal dollar. All awards using Treasury Funds are marked TF in this report. Because applicants must certify the match before Treasury Funds are released, each year a few grants are awarded but not obligated. All of the carry-over obligations from previous years are listed at the end of each category. The Treasury Fund grants that were awarded during Fiscal Year 1994, but not released, are marked with a dagger (†).

Challenge Grant Funds must be matched at least three-to-one. We list both the amounts awarded and the amounts obligated during Fiscal Year 1994.

The Expansion Arts Program provides support for professionally-directed arts organizations that represent ethnic, inner-city and rural communities. We use ethnic in the most inclusive way, to mean African American, Asian American, Latin American, Native American and the diverse populations within European American cultures. The Program has an expressed interest in inner-city organizations which provide access for low-income communities as well as rural organizations which support indigenous artists. In addition, we fund a limited number of projects for older Americans and persons with physical and mental challenges.

NEW HAVEN, CT $6,000
To support a Composition and Contemporary Music Seminar sponsored by the Norfolk Chamber Music Festival.

The Opera-Musical Theater Program made grants in 1994 to support a wide range of activity in a field committed to high-quality production of the standard repertory as well as the new and innovative. The trend toward new works, experimentation, and original approaches to the art form are most encouraging. At the same time, efforts to broaden and develop new audiences through community and school outreach programs and to increase the understanding and appreciation of the various forms of opera and musical theater are meeting with success.

TOURING INITIATIVES

Through several touring initiatives in cooperation with other Endowment programs, the Presenting and Commissioning Program helped bring the performing arts to millions across the nation. Touring Networks grants support model touring programs which have national or regional impact. The Opera-Musical Theater Initiative (administered in conjunction with the Opera-Musical Theater Program) supports touring of American opera-musical theater works. The Theater Touring Initiative (administered in conjunction with the Theater Program) supports touring of theatrical productions. Dancer on Tour (administered in conjunction with the Dance and State & Regional Programs) awards grants to state and regional arts agencies to bring dance companies to communities nationwide. The Regional Arts Organizations Consolidated Presenting Support category involves cooperative agreements with regional arts organizations for support of artists' fees and service programs for regional presenters.

The Theater Program's commitment 28 years ago to seed the field by providing funding to the nation's most stellar theaters is bearing artistic fruit. Both the quality and quantity of applications continue to grow. The 1994 fiscal year was a record-breaking one: a total of 437 theaters applied to our largest category, Professional Theater Companies, an increase of 26 from the previous year. Despite a reduction in the program's budget, peer panels recommended funding for 259 companies, up from 251 last year.

The Visual Arts Program funds the creation of new work by American artists of exceptional talent and supports the presentation of contemporary art to diverse audiences. The program nurtures excellence in the visual arts through fellowships to individuals and grants awarded to organizations for exemplary public activities. These awards are investments in artistic experimentation and the creation of new art forms by gifted artists working across a wide spectrum of media and styles. In addition, the program provides opportunities for the public to see new works of art and engage in talk with contemporary artists.

Challenge Grants provide special opportunities for arts organizations to enhance artistic quality and diversity and to strengthen long-term institutional capability. The Challenge Program offers two forms of support. Project Implementation awards stimulate new programmatic initiatives to strengthen and sustain excellence in the arts, improve access to the arts, and expand appreciation of the arts. Institutional Stabilization awards help organizations attain long-term financial viability by creating or augmenting endowment, cash reserve or other capital funds, reducing accumulated deficits or long-term notes payable, and building or renovating arts facilities.

Each Challenge Grant must be matched with at least three dollars in nonfederal funds. Grants may be obligated at any time over a multi-year period. Unless otherwise noted, the following 1994 Challenge Grants were awarded, but not obligated, during the past fiscal year.

Local arts agencies advance the arts and cultural development through a variety of services and programs that reflect the diversity of and their residents in communities large and small across America. Artists and arts administrators play an important role as leaders in community renewal and as mentors for young people. In many parts of America, local arts agencies serve as the sole providers of the arts for their communities, presenting a broad array of arts programming that touches the lives of all citizens, from the youngest to the oldest.

STATE AND REGIONAL PROGRAM

Before the creation of the National Endowment for the Arts in 1965, only five states had publicly-funded state arts agencies. In response to the encouragement provided by the federal level, each of the 50 states and six jurisdictions formed a state arts agency. Basic State Grants provided by the Arts Endowment still provide powerful incentives for state investment in the arts. Last year, the state legislatures as a group matched Endowment support to state arts agencies by a ratio of approximately 6 to 1.

Panels are composed of artists, arts administrators, patrons and at least one layperson who does not work for an arts organization. Panels are also composed to reflect the aesthetic, geographic and ethnic diversity of America. They meet at the Endowment's headquarters throughout the year to consider all applications and make recommendations to the National Council on the Arts. Panel meetings usually last several days so that a thorough review of all applications may take place.

CONFLICT OF INTEREST

In order to avoid even the appearance of any conflict of interest, no individual may serve on a panel that would consider his or her organization's application. The Endowment employs split panels in some cases, so that individuals affiliated with organizations may serve on panels which do not consider their organization's application. Where split panels are used, each of the separate panels is listed individually as Panel A, Panel B, etc.

After each panel meets, its recommendations are forwarded to the National Council on the Arts for their consideration at one of their quarterly meetings. The Council may approve or reject those recommended applications. All of the approved applications are then forwarded to the Chairman who makes the final decision on which grants are awarded.
